

NYU

RAGE conditional knockout transgenic mice (Columbia)

RAGE conditional knockout transgenic mice are useful for studying the deletion of RAGE which is implicated in energy metabolism and obesity.

The floxed mouse line that was developed is suitable for the generation of a conditional deletion model for RAGE, the main receptor for advanced glycation end-products (AGEs).

Technology ID

SCH08-11

Category

Doug Brawley
Life Sciences/Materials/Mouse
Models

Authors

Ann Marie Schmidt, MD

View online page

